CSN Education Department offers Online Teaching Certificate

LAS VEGAS, Aug. 22, 2008 — Teachers, home schoolers and other educators interested in improving their teaching abilities are encouraged to enroll now in the CSN Online Teaching Program.

A total of six classes (15 units), all taught online, are required to receive the CSN Online Teaching Certificate. Classes begin Aug. 25.

“The Online Teaching Certificate is designed for teachers, home schoolers, college faculty, administrators, educators from training institutes, and staff members interested in making online teaching an important part of their academic careers,” said Dr. Joni Flowers, professor in CSN’s education department which sponsors the certificate program. “It also helps those who wish to take a leadership role in online learning at their institutions.”

Benefits of CSN’s Online Teaching Certificate include:

- Professional development
- Marketability for teaching online courses at other institutions
- Hands-on experience in the use of online delivery tools
- Preparation of educators to create complete online courses from current teaching or training materials now used in the traditional classroom
