

CSN Welcomes Stranded Brightwood College Students

The college will hold an orientation this weekend to help students make the transition

December 13, 2018 – The College of Southern Nevada wants to help former students at Brightwood College complete their degrees.

CSN will hold an orientation session for Brightwood students at 9 a.m. Saturday on the Charleston Campus. CSN officials will help former Brightwood students customize plans and offer support services as they try to get their education back on track.

“We welcome students from Brightwood,” CSN President Dr. Federico Zaragoza said. “CSN recognizes their challenges and we want to do everything we can to make their transition go as smoothly as possible.”

CSN, the state’s largest accredited higher education institution, has designated health program advisors to help students effectively transfer and complete their program of choice.

Because Brightwood College was not a regionally accredited institution, some credits may not transfer to CSN or other regionally accredited institutions. But some credits may transfer through the CSN Non-Traditional Education review process, and CSN is ready to evaluate transcripts one-on-one to help students reach their higher education goals.

Interested Brightwood students are advised to visit <https://www.csn.edu/form/were-you-brightwood-student> to explore their options.
