

CSN, University Police Services Hold ‘Meet & Greet’ Events

Coffee, pizza and K-9 cops are on the agenda

November 22, 2019 – The College of Southern Nevada and University Police Services invite students, faculty and staff to join campus police officers for several “meet and greet” events.

“We want our officers and the campus community to get to know one another better,” said Adam Garcia, associate vice president and director of UPD South. “We are holding these events to give everyone a chance to engage in informal chats with no agenda.”

The Coffee with a Cop and Pizza with Police events are designed to bring police officers and the campus communities together over coffee or pizza to discuss issues and learn more about each other.

Police will also hold an open training session with Buster and Simba, two explosive detection dogs on the force. This is a great chance to meet these dedicated K-9 officers.

The media are welcome to attend any of the events.
